Notes

First, a note on the title and some other terms that come up in this manga.

Bosozoku

This is basically a motorcycle gang. In Japan, they are usually made up of people under 20 years old. Bosozoku gangs have a certain style to them: they trick out their bikes and cars to go faster and be louder. They wear their hair in mohawks and pompadours.

Shonan Bakusozoku

Shonan is a region in Japan (it's part of Kanagawa Prefecture now, though at the time this story takes place, it is its own town in Chiba). It's located in Kanto, which is geographical area in Japan that covers many prefectures. Shonan has a mild climate and access to lots of beaches and water sports.

For the "Bakusozoku" part, I will shamelessly copy what the excellent team at AnimEigo wrote in their linear notes for their release of the first OVA (which you should watch):

"The usual term for biker gangs in Japanese is "Boosoozoku," which translates as "Wild Rider Gang." Substituting "Baku" (Explosive) for "Boo" (Violent) results in "Bakusoozoku," or "Extremely Wild Rider Gang.""

P. 32 First among flowers...

This is a parody of an old saying in Japanese. The original is "First among flowers is the cherry blossom, First among men is the samurai".

The manga will make a habit of playing with well known (Japanese) sayings.
